

Call: Participants sought for research on couple relationships & bi-culturalism

The Centre for Family Studies of the Odisee University of Applied Sciences is carrying out research on the relational experience of couples in which one or both partners are of non-Belgian origin.

We are particularly interested in interviewing people and/or couples in which both partners have non-Belgian roots, or who have separated after such a relationship. The interview will last between 60 and 90 minutes and will take place at a location of your choice or online. The collected data and the reporting will be treated confidentially and will be completely anonymous.

Who can contribute to the study?

- You and/or your (ex-)partner are of non-Belgian origin.
- You are willing to share with us, anonymously, your experience of this relationship in an interview.
- You are at least 18 years old.

Good to know:

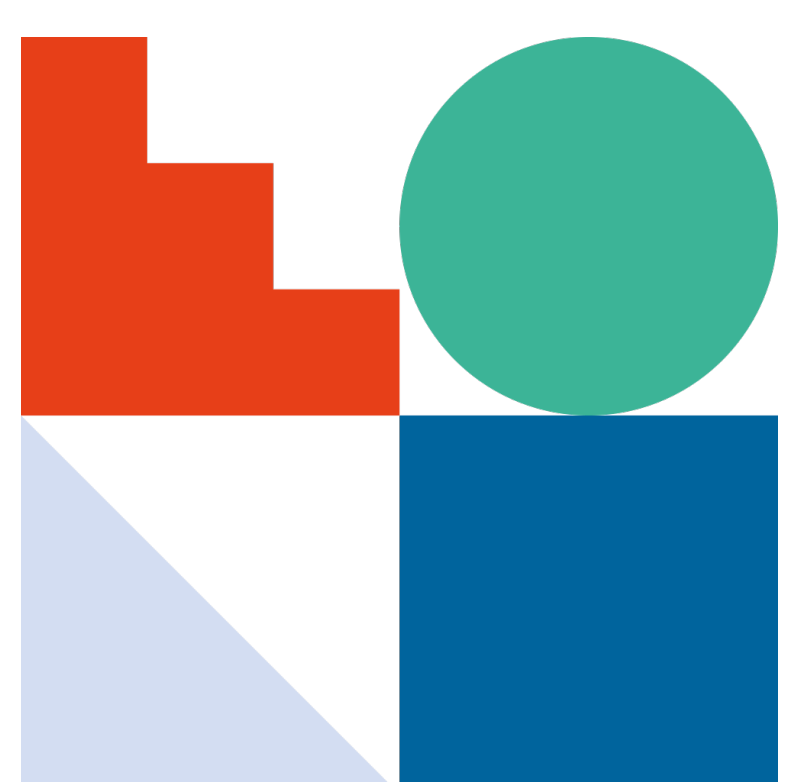

You can take part in the study as an individual or as a couple. You can be interviewed separately or together; that's up to you. Under no circumstances are you obliged to answer all the questions, and you are free to end your participation in the study at any time.

No compensation is offered, but thanks to your participation, you will be helping to develop tools to better support bicultural couples and their families. The interview can be conducted in Dutch, French, English or Turkish. If you prefer to hold the interview in another language, we can arrange for an interpreter.

Participate and help improve support for bicultural couples and families! You can also help us by circulating this appeal.
